Pay your visa fees

Visa applicants, including children, are required to pay a non-refundable, non-transferable visa application fee, sometimes referred to as the MRV fee, before applying for a nonimmigrant visa. The visa application fee must be paid whether a visa is issued or not. The type of visa for which you apply determines the fee amount. This webpage lists visa application fees associated with each nonimmigrant visa type. Please note that only the application fees for nonimmigrant visas are listed here.

All nonimmigrant visa application fee (also known as the MRV fee) payments made on or after October 1, 2022, are valid for 365 days from the date a receipt is issued for payment of the MRV fee. Applicants must schedule an in-person or interview waiver appointment during this 365-day period. Please note applicants must only schedule their in-person or interview waiver appointment within the 365-day period. There is no requirement the interview or VAC appointment must occur during the 365-day period. All receipts for payment of MRV fees issued before October 1, 2022, were extended until September 30, 2023, and remain valid until this date.

Important note on visa fees:

Visa Fees are not refundable. If you have encountered an error with your payment or you believe your payment was not successful, DO NOT PAY THE FEE A SECOND TIME AS IT WILL NOT BE REFUNDED. Please email our support center at support-india@usvisascheduling.com with your concern and we will investigate. Be certain to read the Terms and Conditions on this website and accept that visa appointments are subject to availability and the possibilities of potential delays. Disputing this transaction may delay your ability to schedule an appointment.

IMPORTANT NOTE FOR NEFT PAYMENTS. Be certain to delete the account details from the payee list once the visa payment is successful to avoid an erroneous transfer of funds in the future.

Other fees

In some cases, additional visa fees are paid directly to the National Visa Center, to the U.S. Embassy or Consulate, or to the Department of Homeland Security.

Nonimmigrant visa issuance ("reciprocity") fees

Applicants from certain countries may be required to pay a visa issuance fee after their application is approved. These fees are based on "reciprocity" (what another country charges a U.S. citizen for a similar-type of visa). The United States strives to eliminate visa issuance fees whenever possible, however, when a foreign government imposes these fees on U.S. citizens for certain types of visas, the United States will impose a "reciprocal" fee on citizens of that country for similar types of visas. The Department of State's website has more information about visa issuance fees and can help you determine if an issuance fee applies to your nationality.

SEVIS Fee

The Student and Exchange Visitor Information System (SEVIS) is an Internet-based system that tracks F, M and J visa participants and their family members from the time they receive their initial documentation, either a Form I-20 or Form DS-2019, until they graduate, leave school, or finish the program.

F, M and J visa principal applicants: Check with your U.S. school to make sure your information has been entered into SEVIS. You will need to pay a separate SEVIS fee in addition to the visa application fee. For nonimmigrant students with Form I-20 and for most exchange visitors with Form DS-2019, the SEVIS fee amount can be found here. Proof of payment is required before your student or exchange visitor visa will be issued. Payment cannot be made at the U.S. Embassy or Consulate. Instructions for paying the SEVIS fee can be found here.

SEVIS Fee Exception

Applicants participating in a U.S. Government sponsored program (programs whose codes begin with G-1, G-2, G-3, G-7) are not required to pay the SEVIS fee.

Additional Blanket L fees (fraud prevention and detection fee)

Those applying for Blanket L visa category are subjected to following additional fees. Payment will be made at the cashier window of the consular section on the day of the interview. Fee payment options include:

- Demand draft in favor of “U.S. Embassy” payable at par.
- Credit Card (MasterCard or Visa).
- Cash in Indian rupees or US dollars.
- Debit cards and personal cheques are not accepted.

Fraud prevention and detection fee

First-time principal applicants who are covered under a blanket petition for L status must pay a Fraud Prevention and Detection fee. If a subsequent L-1 visa application is based on a new form I-129S, the Fraud Prevention and Detection fee must be paid again.

Biometric entry-exit fee

Blanket L-1 applications for petitioners with more than 50 employees in the United States and with more than 50 percent of those employees in H-1B or L status are subjected to an additional Biometric entry-exit fee.

Blanket L fees are not refundable. L-2 derivative applicants are not subject to the additional fees.
